He is also survived by three brothers and one sister—James and Joshua Points, of Belden; Attorney Moses A. Points and Mrs Isaac Pierson, of Bedford. The deceased was a member of the Methodist church and of the Masonic fraternity. The funeral services were largely attended and were held at decedent's late home on Monday and on Tuesday the remains were taken to Altoona for interment. Calvin Smith.

Calvin Smith, only son of David Smith (deceased) and his wife, Charlotte, was born in Harrison township on January 2, 1860, and died at the Pennsylvania State Lunatic hospital, Harrisburg, on March 29, 1904, aged 44 years, two months and 27 days. He was a quiet, peaceable citizen until his mind gave way and then he tried to take his own life. On April 17, 1903, he shot himself through his left arm near the shoulder and on July 16 following he was taken to Harrisburg, where he died. The remains were brought to Mann's Choice on the noon train Wednesday and taken to the old Smith home in Harrison township. The funeral took place on Thursday at 10 a. m. in the Reformed church on Dry Ridge and was conducted by Rev D. G. Hetrick, of Schellsburg. Interment in the graveyard at the church.

On September 15, 1889, she was united in marriage to Dr. Nason, of Roaring Spring. She was an active member of the Lutheran church. Mrs. Anstead was twice married, her first husband being John Slick, who died in 1874. Her second husband was Henry Anstead. He died about three years ago. She is survived by six children to her first husband, namely, William and Edwin, of Pittsburg; George, of Bennington, Kan.; Henry, of Johnstown; Mrs. Daniel Heck, of Libertyville, Ill., and Mrs. Charles Shultz, of Maryland. She is also survived by one brother, George Border, of Spring Hope.

Mrs. Catharine Beach.

Mrs. Catharine Beach, wife of Adam Beach, of South Woodbury township, died on March 31, aged 37 years. Mrs. Beach was married in 1887 and lived in the vicinity of New Enterprise since that time. She was a consistent member of the German Baptist church since early girlhood and was known by all as a kind, devoted mother and an esteemed neighbor. She leaves, beside her husband, a family of eight children, who, in their bereavement, have the sincere sympathy of the community in which they live. Funeral services were held at New Enterprise Sunday morning, conducted by Elder C. L. Buck, of New Enterprise, and Elder E. H. Smith, of Martinsburg.

Henry W. Logue.

On March 30 typhoid fever caused the death of an honest, hard-working young man of near New Paris, Henry W. Logue, who was aged 22 years, three months and 19 days. Henry and his brother Albert had their home with their mother and were her only support. Rev. W. E. Fredericks, pastor of the Evangelical church, conducted the funeral services. Interment was made in the Evangelical cemetery. The pall-bearers were Lloyd Wendell, Charles Ling, Ross Ridenour and Christian Long.

War News Scarce.

The news from the Russo-Japanese war has been very meagre the past week. No definite information has been received in regard to the movements of the opposing forces.

SAXTON'S "STARCHY" OPERA HOUSE

W. F. Wise, scenic artist of Tyrone, was in Saxton on Monday inspecting the scenic requirements for the Bossler opera house. It is the intention of the owner to furnish the house with modern requisites in the matter of stage fittings and auditorium furniture. Besides the pit and dress circle the opera room will have two galleries and two or four proscenium boxes. It will be carpeted, lighted by electricity and heated by steam. An effort is being made to have it dedicated on July 4, when a flag will be presented and floated from the flag-staff.

Doings of 'Borough Dads.'

At the regular monthly meeting of council Monday evening all of the councilmen were present. William Fletcher appeared and asked that certain properties on Spring street be allowed to tap the borough water mains. The matter was referred to the water committee, with power to act. Ritchey and William Hartley, Jr., asked permission to dig a cess pool on West Simpson street; referred to street committee. The firemen asked for 500 feet of new hose; referred to fire committee. Victory for W. R. Hearst.

The case of the interstate commerce commission against Baird, commonly known as the anthracite coal case, was decided by the supreme court of the United States on Monday in favor of the contentions of the commission, the decision of the United States circuit court for the southern district of New York being reversed. This is the case instituted before the commission by W. R. Hearst, of New York, who alleged discrimination by the railroad companies which reached the anthracite coal mines in Pennsylvania. During the hearing some of the witnesses refused to produce certain contracts bearing upon the business of the railroad companies and the coal mines, which action was upheld by the circuit court of New York. The United States supreme court held that the contracts should have been supplied. The opinion was handed down by Justice Day.

Turn On the Light.

The iron bridge seems to be the popular trysting place of many of the tough characters of Bedford. Here under the cover of darkness girls of savory reputation meet by appointment men of immoral habits. Within the past few days some respectable people while crossing the bridge on a business mission have been insulted by strangers who no doubt had made arrangements to meet some one there. It would be a good thing for council to put an arc or some incandescent lamps at the bridge. Those who live in the Mann Addition and on Sunny Side cross the structure nearly every night and many other people are compelled to pass over the bridge frequently after dark.

Double Tragedy at Meyersdale.

W. P. Saylor, aged 26 years, of Meyersdale, shortly after the arrival of the accommodation train at that place from Cumberland Tuesday afternoon shot and instantly killed Mrs. Lewis Hoggemeyer, aged 22 years, then sent another bullet through his own brain, resulting in his instant death. About a year ago Mrs. Hoggemeyer separated from her husband and went to live with Saylor. Becoming dissatisfied with her manner of living, the woman on Tuesday met her husband in Cumberland and they settled their differences and agreed to live together again. Saylor learned of the reconciliation and when Mrs. Hoggemeyer returned to Meyersdale killed her and then took his own life.

Judge Harry White Beaten.

INDIANA, April 2.—Judge Harry White met his first defeat in Indiana county politics at the Republican primaries here today, when he lost his fight for re-nomination in the most bitter political contest ever waged in the county. Both his opponents, Samuel Cunningham and S. J. Telford, polled larger votes than did Mr. White. Judge White charges that the opposition used boodle and whisky with a lavish hand.

Senator Burton Sentenced.

On Wednesday United States Senator J. R. Burton, of Kansas, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in jail and a fine of $2,500 for using his influence before the postoffice department in behalf of the Rialto Grain and Securities company of St. Louis and for having received payment from the company for his services.

EASTER SERVICES.

Special Programs Rendered in Churches of Bedford.

MUSIC AND FLOWERS.

Songs of Praise and Beautiful Blossoms Were Features of the Celebration of the Glad Festal Day.

Easter dawned clear and crisp and cold, with a few belated snowflakes skurrying through the air; but despite the chilly weather the special services held in the various churches of Bedford were, as usual, largely attended.

AT TRINITY.

At Trinity Lutheran church joy and gladness seemed to reign in every heart. The sacred edifice was beautifully and tastefully decorated with potted flowers, palms and ferns and with three evergreen arches. The Communion was unusually large, notwithstanding there is much sickness in a number of the families of the members. Very appropriate music added joy to the occasion. Two beautiful anthems, one in the morning, the other in the evening, were well rendered by the choir. There were six additions to the membership. Though this is the smallest number of accessions at any Easter service during the present pastorate, there is the encouraging fact that the yearly average has been 20 additions. The offerings at this Communion amounted to $40.70 for missions and the other benevolent work of the synod. At the evening service the subject of the pastor's sermon was "The Significance of Easter."

AT ST. THOMAS'

Easter was observed in St. Thomas' Catholic church with impressive services at 8, 10:30 a. m. and 7 p. m. At the early service Rev. Father Cashman preached an inspiring sermon on the Resurrection. At 10:30 an able discourse was delivered by Rev. Father Lawrence, of New Baltimore. The altar was elaborately decorated with cut flowers and potted plants. The choir, assisted by a number of young folks, rendered Ganss' Mass in G and Battman's Regina Coeli.

AT THE M. E.

Easter was appropriately observed in the Methodist church, although no special service was rendered other than that of the usual church form. The newly returned pastor—Rev. George Leidy—preached an able sermon in the morning and the regular church choir sang with fine effect the anthem, "Resurrection," which was followed during the offertory by a solo entitled "Hail, Smiling Morn", sung by D. S. Horn, Esq., who never fails to please his hearers. A special missionary offering was lifted in the Sunday school as also at the evening service, which service took a decidedly missionary trend. Several anthems were beautifully rendered by the junior choir both at the afternoon and evening services and a missionary address was made by the pastor at the latter service. The decorations of ferns, palms and blooming plants were beautiful and added greatly to the impressiveness of the occasion.

AT ST. JOHN'S.

Easter was observed at St. John's Reformed church with inspiring services. The chancel was beautifully decorated with flowers and foliage plants, as has always been the custom. At the Holy Communion in the morning the attendance and the number of communicants were unusually large. As the result of a special effort on the part of the congregation, the offering was the largest on record with but one exception. Percy Daniels presided at the organ and played with much feeling Batiste's Communion in G. Rev. Apple spoke briefly concerning the results of the Resurrection life in us as shown in conduct, pointing out that this all was brought to light for the first time by the risen Savior. Five young persons were received into church membership by confirmation Friday evening and twelve were received by letter, making 25 since the beginning of the church year in December. The pastor was assisted in the Communion by Rev. Dr. Cyrus J. Musser, editor of the Reformed Church Messenger, Philadelphia. In the evening a hearty and enthusiastic children's service was participated in by a congregation that filled the church. The little folks entered into the service with ardor and took part in the recitations and exercises in a way very pleasing to the listeners and reflecting credit upon those who so patiently trained them. At the close of the service an Easter egg was given each member of the school, and also to each little one present in the church.

Bills Paid by Poor Directors.

At the monthly meeting of the directors of the poor on Wednesday bills amounting to $2,117 were paid, the principal ones being Treasurer J. W. Lessig, outdoor relief for March, $192.50; Dr. J. M. Murdoch, care feeble-minded, $53.25; F. A. Awl, care insane, $22.75; W. H. Stuckey, care smallpox patients, $116 77; A. C. Blackburn & Co., groceries, $42.02; D. W. Prosser, flour and feed, $76 23; Metzger Hardware company, hardware, $36.10; J. W. Lessig, oil and papering, $17; Cleaver & Galley, coal, etc., $55.74; Bedford County Telephone company, 'phone, $19.75; Gazette Publishing company, $60 60; J F. Biddle, $25; Republican Printing company, $25; I. N. Swope, $25; Hawkeye Publishing company, $25; Inquirer Printing company, $70.10; J. W. Lessig, fence wire, $12; G. L. Werking, manure spreader, $120; A. P. Hillegas, potatoes, $10.50.

Special Session of Court.

A special session of court was held Monday afternoon by the associate judges, at which time the commission of Hon. William J. Diehl, the lately appointed associate judge, was read by Clerk E Howard Blackburn and the judge assumed his duties. The liquor license of Edward Graffious at Defiance was transferred to John Rankin. Petition of citizens of Napier township for viewers to view and locate a road between John P. Lehman's and a line near lands of Kerr and Egolf, Samuel Ake, Esq., J. M. Housel and H. Clay Mullin were named as viewers. Bond of John W. Rouse, executor and trustee of James J. Richards, deceased, was filed and approved.

QUAY'S CATAPULT

Put Out of Commission by the Mighty Storm of Protests.

HARRISBURG, April 6.—Governor Pennypacker declined to be a candidate for supreme court justice yesterday and with a unanimity that is suspiciously suggestive of prearrangement former Attorney General John P. Elkin, of Indiana county, was offered the nomination, which he accepted. Subsequently a caucus of all the delegates was held and he was unanimously endorsed and was the only candidate for the supreme court in the convention today, being nominated without opposition. Yesterday was a day of surprises. Very few suspected that the governor would refuse the nomination that he so much desired and which was within his grasp. Early in the morning Senator Penrose had a conference with the governor, and reported to his intimates that he was "still shaky." No one believed, however, that in the end the governor would not accept. The action of the Philadelphia delegates indorsing him and pledging their support was expected to clinch it. It did, but not in the way they anticipated. In the face of the mighty protest from judges, lawyers, and the people generally, Quay feared to catapult his cousin onto the supreme bench, so that Pennypacker, for the present, must be content with an election as one of the four delegates to the Republican national convention. Before the close of his term of governor, however, he expects to be appointed to an anticipated vacancy in the supreme court of the United States. The salary of the supreme court justice is $10,000 a year and the term is 21 years.

The delegates-at-large to the national convention chosen at today's meeting are Governor Pennypacker; James Elverson, proprietor of the Philadelphia Inquirer; O. D. Bleakley, of Franklin, and F. L. Robbins, of Pittsburg. They were instructed to vote for the nomination of President Roosevelt. Robert Pitcairn, of Pittsburg, and Clarence Wolf, of Philadelphia, were named for electors-at-large. The resolutions adopted praise all of the Republican policies and public officials from Roosevelt to Quay.

Birthday Surprise Party.

Monday, April 4, being the 65th birthday of Mrs. Sarah A. Feight, of Bedford township, her relatives and friends decided to give her a surprise party, and the success of the affair is attested to by all who participated. It seemed that they decided to have an early start, as the party was held on Saturday, April 2, the participants gathering at the home of Mrs. Feight's daughter, Mrs. Frank M. Suter, in Harrison township. The surprisers began to gather early in the morning and continued coming until the morning train arrived from the east, when the last of the party arrived. The good woman was inveigled from her daughter's house to the home of a neighbor and kept there by various excuses until everything was in readiness, when she was escorted home by a young niece. She was in gross ignorance of what was transpiring at the home of Mr. Suter and when she opened the door and was surrounded by her relatives and friends she was so overcome that she hardly knew whether to laugh or cry. The festivities of the day commenced immediately and fairly reigned supreme, by far the pleasantest event of the day being the disposal of the contents of an immense table, which "fairly groaned" with its load of good things with which to invigorate the inner man. After a day spent in general rejoicing and an exchange of good will all around, the party dispersed to their various homes, which embraced a circle including nearly all the confines of Bedford county and extending even to Altoona, Blair county.

PILOT.

Operators and Miners Agree on Scale.

The Central Pennsylvania bituminous coal operators and miners on Saturday ended their battle over the formation of a wage scale that will govern the price for the mining of coal for the year beginning April 1. The rates heretofore in force, with the following changes, were renewed and continued: That the pick mining price shall be 62 cents per gross ton. That machine loading shall be 5.9 of the pick mining rate, plus ½ cent per ton. That machine cutting and scraping, whether by the day, ton or board, shall be reduced 6.06 per cent. All other labor inside and outside of the mines shall be reduced 5.55 per cent. below the present wage scale, with the exception of blacksmiths and carpenters receiving less than $2.25 per day, and other outside labor receiving less than $1.85 per day, who shall not be reduced; and providing further that blacksmiths and carpenters receiving more than $2.25 shall not be reduced below $2.25 per day in the application of this reduction. All dead work to be reduced 6.06 per cent. on present rate paid. All monthly men and all those engaged in the manufacture of coke to be reduced 5.55 per cent. on the existing rates.

A Happy Time.

At the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Hartley, M. Ellen Morgart on Saturday afternoon entertained her little lady friends in honor of her tenth birthday. Ellen was the recipient of very beautiful and useful presents, tokens of love and friendship. The girls were given free use of the house and they enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. Toothsome refreshments were served and as they surrounded the festive board their bright faces plainly indicated that they were having a happy time. Those present were Mildred Hershberger, Edna Mardorff, Lillian Mock, Marguerite Stuckard, Juliet Wright, Fannie Oppenheimer, Katharine White, Nina Dallbaugh, Pauline Taft, Magdalene Reed, Ruth Reed, Rena Smith, Julia Piper, Corena Rush, Mary Ellen Morgart, Margaret Brightbill.

An interesting literary and musical program will be rendered and a general good time is anticipated. All friends of the League and church are cordially invited to attend.

CAPITAL CITY CHAT.

Letter From Our Washington Correspondent.

BY SPASMODIC JERKS

Legitimate Business Goes Forward in House and Senate—Issues for the Campaign.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Legitimate business goes forward by spasmodic jerks in both senate and house. The senate now has the postoffice appropriation bill in hand and the house is trying to swing the civil service appropriation bill every night "a day's march nearer home." The reading clerk is presenting them item by item and contesting the floor as far as the speaker will let him with members who insist upon carrying on an acrimonious partisan debate between sentences. This hesitating progress has continued day by day. On Thursday Senator Gorman spiritedly arraigned the Republican party for sins of commission and omission, especially for refusing to investigate the diffusive postoffice scandal. He insisted that under lax methods corruption had permeated every department of the government; that thousands of office-holders had snatched boodle merely because their party had been too long in power and would probably soon be driven from all places of authority.

Senator Dolliver, of Iowa, "the" Republican orator, deprecated the "senseless clamor" which demanded investigation and insisted that adequate and ample investigation had already been made and reported by the postoffice department itself. There had been enough investigation, he said, and congress ought to go straight on with its work. Governor McCreary, of Kentucky, asked Mr. Dolliver if it was generally considered adequate for a prisoner to sit in judgment on his own offenses. Senator Patterson, of Colorado, insisted that there had been no investigation whatever in reply to the demand which had been made for one by the commissioners appointed by the president himself, and declared that an early adjournment had been decided on to avoid legislation not desired by the president. There was to be no tariff revision; no public building bill; no river and harbor bill; no reciprocity; no investigation of various scandals; no settlement of the Swayne or Smoot cases. Senator Lodge asked him if the nation had not had prosperity and when in the past there had ever been such a high tide of prosperity as under the Dingley act. Senator Patterson replied that the country had had flush times and periods of depression under both parties and all kinds of legislation, but he would venture to say that under the so-called free trade regime of 1846 there was more general thrift and national prosperity than there had been under the administrations of McKinley and Roosevelt. Senator Lodge admitted that the worst feature of the so-called postoffice scandal was the fact now revealed that there had been "secret rules" in the department for the benefit of congressmen; it was hoped that the present bill would abolish them.

In the house there are premonitory spats every day. John Sharp Williams, the Democratic leader, said the situation bristled with issues for the campaign. The party in power would be held responsible not merely for its failure to cultivate reciprocal relations with other nations and its refusal to punish grafters or investigate manifest and palpable corruption, and for bankrupting the treasury, but especially for its refusal to prosecute the coal-carrying-railroad trust and to bring criminal action against the Northern Securities company and condign punishment on the promoters of that conspiracy. He added that the impeachment of Judge Swayne ought to be vigorously carried on or stopped; that it was not dignified or decent to hold a high judicial officer in suspension while his arraigners went home to fix their fences.

Although there will probably be no new public building begun or authorized this year, the house has provided in the sundry civil bill for a magnificent addition to the capitol—an extension of the main body of the building eastward 108 feet so as to bring it out upon the plaza flush with the two wings This addition will contain 66 spacious and sumptuous rooms, half of which will belong to the house and half to the senate. The entire extension will cost $2,500,000 and will be finished in two years. Leading from the east steps to the rotunda will be a beautiful marble vestibule, 108 feet long, forming a grand entrance to the building. The senate will probably ratify the scheme.

The administration indulges in vociferous joy over the news from Paris that the Panama title is clear and Columbia has lost her canal suit in the French court, enabling the canal company to turn over the property to us during the present month. When he read the news Senator Lodge rushed up to the White House and embraced the president with his emotion than two girls show upon the street when confiding to each other their matrimonial prospects. Other visitors gave way and diplomatically shrunk into embrasures of the windows and slid behind portieres so as to see, not to be witnesses of the too ardent felicitations and transports of rapture. Now let us see if Uncle Sam can read his title clear to ditches in the swamp.

The numerous understrappers who have risen from Shank's ordinary mare to a gorgeous equipage during the last two or three years will be deeply embarrassed by the sundry civil bill, if it goes through the senate unscathed. It provides that all carriages owned by the government shall hereafter bear the painted name of the department which they serve. This will diminish their use as private chariots to some extent, but, as it stands, the identifying name need not be any larger than the type in which this letter is printed, and they may put it on the inside or on the under side. So there are chances of escape.

Enjoyable Easter Dance.

About 42 young people of Bedford held a dance in Dunkle's hall Monday evening. The dancing began at 8 and the merry-makers tripped the "light fantastic" to the strains of many well known airs faultlessly rendered by the popular Bedford orchestra. At a late hour the orchestra and dancers went to the Union hotel and enjoyed a delicious chicken and waffle supper, after which they returned to the hall and resumed dancing and continued until three o'clock. The participants pronounce this one of the most enjoyable dances ever given in Dunkle's hall.

THE PRICE OF PUBLIC HEALTH.

"Clean up!" should be the watchword of every citizen at this time—and it should not only be a shibboleth to be shouted but it should stir each and every one to action. The weather for the past few days has given promise of "better things." It looks as if King Winter has at last been dethroned and nobody seems to be weeping over his downfall. He surely stayed the limit, and when he was in power cut up capers the like of which were never surpassed by his predecessors, if we are to believe the testimony of the "oldest inhabitant." The foretaste of spring which we have had may be only a bluff on the part of the whimsical weather man, but however that may be, the genuine, Simon-pure article is bound to come before long, and it is not too early to begin the annual cleaning up. After the melting of the winter's snow and ice there are always deposits of filth left here, there and everywhere. The debris in our streets and alleys and about our premises are no doubt full of disease germs which may cause sickness and death when subjected to the sun's hot rays. All this dangerous rubbish should be promptly burned. It is the duty of every householder to do his utmost to ward off sickness. He can fulfil this obligation by removing all refuse from his yards, cellars, etc., and using lime plentifully. Let all remember that the price of public health is cleanliness and act accordingly.

HOW TO CURB PAPER TRUST.

In a recent speech in congress Representative Champ Clark, of Missouri, told how the pernicious paper trust could be curbed. "In three congresses," said Mr. Clark, "I have introduced bills to place wood-pulp, white paper and all the ingredients in their composition on the free list—one of the propositions now urged by the Publishers' association as a remedy for trusts. Did the Republican members aid me any? Not that anybody ever heard of. In the Fifty-fifth congress they would have had to line up only eight Republican members to pass my bill, for every Democratic member would have supported it most heartily, and no one in his senses for one moment doubts that the Republican members of that association could have lashed that many Republican representatives, and more, into supporting my bill."

"Mr. Clark is right," says the New York World. "If the Republican newspapers that have meekly requested the removal of the tax on knowledge that fattens the paper trust should turn their request into a demand and make it a personal matter with every representative within their respective spheres of influence, the trust would be taking to the woods in less time than it takes Mr Roosevelt to pass a new pension law outside of the Constitution. * * * When the newspapers that suffer from the extortion of the paper trust are ready to drop partisanship they will not find their petitions treated with the indifference that meets them now."

SENATOR BURTON'S CRIME.

The senior United States senator from Kansas, Joseph Ralph Burton, has brought disgrace upon the highest legislative body of one of the most enlightened nations of the world. A jury of his peers has adjudged him guilty of using his official influence for pay to help along with the postoffice department the Rialto Grain and Securities company, which was threatened with exclusion from the mails under a fraud order. The summary of the evidence against Senator Burton follows:

I. In November, 1902, Burton accepted a proposition to become general counsel of the Rialto Grain and Securities company, a concern whose operations at the time were under the scrutiny of postoffice officials.

II. He demanded $2,500 for his services, but was satisfied to be paid in monthly installments of $500 each.

III. Soon after his employment it developed that the federal grand jury was investigating the Brooks Brokerage company, with which Maj. Hugh C. Dennis, president of the Rialto company, had been associated.

IV In December, 1903, Dennis was indicted and appealed to Burton for help

V. Numerous letters written by Burton showed that the senator was using his influence to prevent the issuance of a fraud order against the Rialto Grain and Securities company.

VI. Burton submitted regular reports to the Rialto company, telling it how matters were progressing at Washington, advising it of complaints filed at the postoffice department and closing with the assurance that "if you look after things at your end of the line I will attend to matters here."

VII. According to postoffice officials Senator Burton had told them he intended to practise before the department; that he had lost $70,000 in the panic, and desired to "make some money as a practising lawyer."

The maximum penalty of Burton's crime is two years' imprisonment and a fine of ten thousand dollars for each of the five counts upon which he was convicted. It isn't likely that he will be made to pay the full penalty of his offenses, but his punishment should be severe enough to serve as a warning against others who may be tempted to sell themselves for a mess of pottage and thus besmirch the congress of the United States.

Raise the Fallen

By C. F. S.

Raise the fallen with words of cheer
And smooth the paths they tread while here,
With gentle hand;
For who may tell in Life's strange thrall,
When weal or woe may each befall,
If we shall stand?

Wipe from her brow the chill, damp dew,
Push back those locks of raven hue,
Unkempt and long;
And listen, while beyond control,
She pours from out her inmost soul
A tale of wrong.

Raise the fallen; they yet may smile
And love each weary heart beguile,
Years softly roll,
And peace may reign, where all was storm;
For in each frail, sin-broken form
There is a soul.

Oh! raise him up with tender care,
And he, so young, so weak and fair,
May stand alone;
And in the years to come have joy
In that once wretched, fallen boy,
Now, all your own.

Go down to those, so early lost,
And win them back at any cost;
Oh! try to save
One soul at least, from shame and sin,
'Ere they shall sink to rest, within
The waiting grave.

Raise the fallen, and they may bless,
With tears, thy name; the fatherless
Join in thy praise;
The weak and erring proudly stand
As pillars in this goodly land
And wisdom's ways.

Aye! raise them up, that we may say,
And truthfully, in that Great Day,
My brother's here,
Nor let them end as they began,
But like the good Samaritan,
The friendless cheer.

Lowly he lies—and yet he lives,
Upheld by Him that gave and gives
Us hopes of bliss.
Let not the heart its portals close,
For mercy his that mercy shows,
Remember this.

Shall we in fear yet stand aloof,
With bitter word or harsh reproof,
And see them die?
Did He do so, Who drained our cup,
Forgave the thief and raised him up,
Beyond the sky?

Age may not keep its youthful pride,
Then let us stoop, whate'er betide,
To work and plan;
Like Him, let us forgive and raise,
The fallen from their evil ways;
Do what we can.

Oil in Alaska.

The recent account of the large shipment of men, machinery and supplies to the Alaska oil fields aroused considerable interest in this new prospective industry. Like all other similar ventures, however, the oil industry in Alaska is at present largely speculative. The same is also very true in regard to most of the medicines offered to cure stomach, liver and kidney ills. They spring up from time to time, make wonderful claims, but because of lack of merit are soon forgotten. Not so, however, with the famous Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It has been before the public continuously for fifty years, and if it was not a safe, reliable medicine it could not have stood the severe test of half a century. For spring fever, general debility, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, la grippe or malaria, it is unequalled. Give it a trial.

Beauties of the World's Fair.

Scribner's magazine for April gives a very effective and artistic presentation of the beauties of the world's fair at St. Louis in a series of drawings by Jules Guerin, four of them reproduced in colors. There is no artist who succeeds in giving more of the poetic beauty of architecture than Guerin, whose wonderful sketches of Washington will be recalled. Montgomery Schuyler, the well known art critic, writes of the architectural significance of the great exposition which is soon to open. The illustrations and the plan, with the illuminating text, will enable anyone properly to see and appreciate the architectural features of the fair.

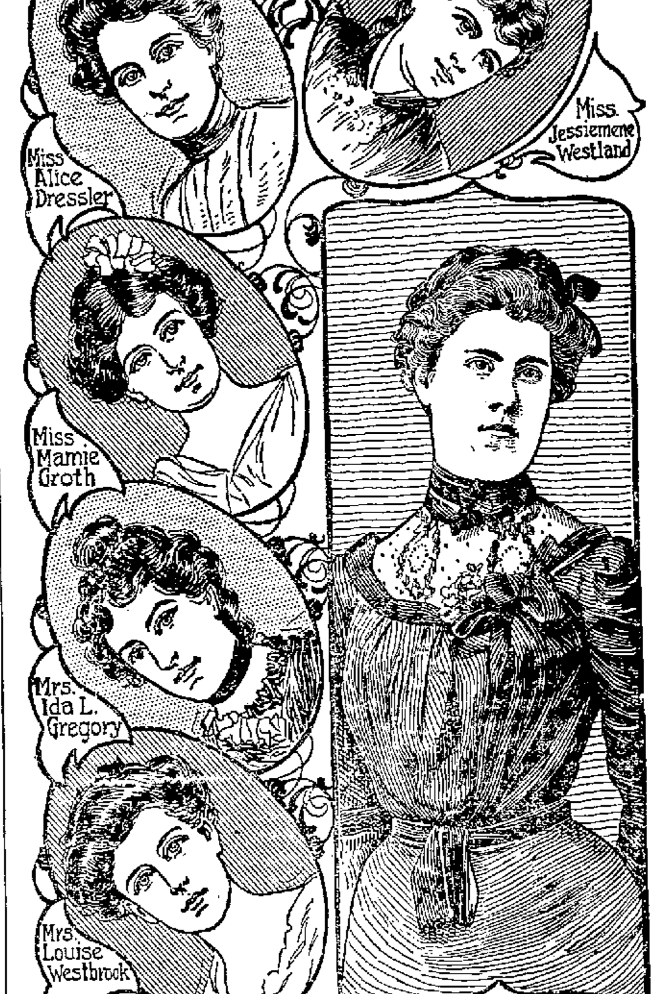
VERY TRYING TO WOMEN

Are the Peculiar Ills Brought on by Catarrh of the Pelvic Organs.

(Pe-ru-na is a Tonic Especially Adapted to Their Peculiar Diseases.)



Catarrh is a very frequent cause of that class of diseases popularly known as female weakness. Catarrh of the pelvic organs produces such a variety of disagreeable and irritating symptoms that many people—in fact, the majority of people—have no idea that they are caused by catarrh.

A great proportion of women have some catarrhal weakness which has been called by the various doctors she has consulted by as many different names. These women have been treated and have taken medicines, with no relief, simply because the remedies are not adapted to catarrh. It is through a mistaken notion as to the real nature of the diseases that these medicines have been recommended to them.

If all the women who are suffering with any form of female weakness would write to Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, and give him a complete description of their symptoms and the peculiarities of their troubles, he will immediately reply, with complete directions for treatment, free of charge.

"Health and Beauty," a book written especially for women, sent free by Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Alice Dressler, of No. 1313 North Bryant Ave., Minneapolis, Minn., writes as follows concerning Peruna:

"I was suffering from catarrh of the throat and head. One of my college friends, who was visiting me, asked me to try Peruna and I did so and found it all and more than I had expected. It not only cured me of the catarrh, but restored me to perfect health."—Alice Dressler.

Miss Mamie Groth, Platteville, Wis., writes:

"I have for several years suffered with frequent backache and would for several days have splitting headaches. Several of my friends advised me to take Peruna and I asked my physician what he thought of it. He recommended it and so I took it and am entirely without pain of any kind now."—Mamie Groth.

In a recent letter from No. 2 Grant Ave., Denver, Col., Mrs. Ida L. Gregory writes:

"Some six years ago my husband suffered with nervous prostration, and advising with a friendly druggist he brought home a bottle of Peruna. His health was restored from its use, his appetite was increased and restful sleep came to him."—Ida L. Gregory.

Miss Florence Murphy, No. 2703 Second Ave., Seattle, Wash., writes:

"I suffered for over a year with female trouble, and although I tried several physicians none of them seemed to be able to help me permanently.

"It only took a little over three bottles of Peruna to make me well and strong. I never have backache, headache or bearing down pains any more."—Florence Murphy.

Mrs. Louise Westbrook, No. 9 East Columbia St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary of the West Side Lotus Club, writes:

"For several years I suffered with leucorrhœa and painful menstruation, which was followed by general debility, until I was but a wreck of myself. Thanks to Peruna I am a well woman to-day."—Louise Westbrook.

Miss Jessiemene Westland, No. 707 Beaubien Ave., Detroit, Mich., District Deputy of Detroit Independent Order of Good Templars, writes as follows:

"Peruna has been a blessing to me and gladly do I indorse it. For two years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach. I lost flesh and grew thin and emaciated, nervous and exhausted, so that I could neither work or enjoy life. I began taking Peruna and can now eat and enjoy everything I eat. I have been well over a year now."—Miss Jessiemene Westland.

International S. S. Lesson For April 10.

PETER CONFESSES THE CHRIST. Mark VIII: 27-38.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." Matt. 16:16.

Jesus and His disciples came to Bethsaida. Here some people brought a blind man to Him and begged Him to touch him. Then Jesus took the blind man by the hand and brought him out of the village; and when He had put saliva on the man's eyes and placed His hand on him, He asked him if he could see anything. The man looked up and said:

"I see men; for I behold them as trees, walking."

Then Jesus again placed His hands on the man's eyes; and the man looked hard, and his sight was restored, and he made out everything distinctly. Jesus sent him home, telling him not even to go into the village.

Afterward Jesus and his disciples left for the villages round Cesarea Philippi; and on the way He asked His disciples this question:

"Who do men say that I am?"

They answered: "John the Baptist; but others say Elijah, while others say one of the prophets."

And He asked them: "But Who say ye that I am?"

And to this Peter replied: "You are the Christ."

And Jesus charged them that they should tell no man of Him.

Then He began to explain to them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the councilors, chief priests and rabbis and be killed, and after three days rise again. And he spake the saying openly.

But Peter drew Jesus to him and began to remonstrate with Him. But He, turning about and seeing His disciples, rebuked Peter, and said to him:

"Get thee behind me, satan, for thou mindest not the things of God, but the the things of men."

And He called unto Him the multitude with His disciples and said to them:

"If any man would come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whosoever would save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake and the gospel shall save it. For what does it profit a man to gain the whole world and forfeit his life? For what should a man give in exchange for his life? For whosoever shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of man also shall be ashamed of him, when He comes in the glory of His Father with the holy angels."

If, then, ye were raised together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is, seated on the right hand of God. Set your minds on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth. For ye died and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, Who is our life, shall be manifested, then shall ye also be manifested with Him in glory. Mortify, therefore, your members which are upon the earth; fornication, uncleanness, passion, evil desire and covetousness, the which is idolatry, for which things' sake comes the wrath of God upon the sons of disobedience.

Robbed the Grave.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy, the first bottle made a decided improvement I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at J. R. Irvine & Co's. Drug Store.

"A Strange Railroad Wreck"

Probably not in the whole world today is there an example of an uphill fight against adversity that will surpass the case of George Collins, who lives a few miles up this valley from Donora, at the village of Elco. Some of our citizens who are acquainted up the river are quite familiar with the circumstances. While yet a boy George Collins became afflicted with inflammatory rheumatism which resulted in the solidification of the joints of his knees, the right ankle, both elbows, wrists, thumbs and four of his fingers. For nearly twenty years he has never been able to touch his face with his hands, and in order to eat used a fork thirteen inches long, with which he was able to convey the food to his mouth. Simply being afflicted with a terrible disease is not the remarkable feature of Mr. Collins' existence. He has not only supported himself, but has earned money besides to pay for hospital treatment. When sixteen years of age and confined to a rolling chair he started a paper at Elco and, apparently unconscious of the irony of fate, called it "Little Sunshine." He used a little lever hand press and did the work on it himself. Later he started the Roscoe Ledger, which he afterward sold to the present publisher. Mr. Collins also mastered shorthand and typewriting and was employed for sometime as telegraph operator in a railroad office. Mr. Collins' work has been interrupted by frequent courses of treatment at various hospitals. About two years ago he entered one at New York and for the first time has received some benefit. He is now able to move the elbow slightly, but has been compelled to give up treatment for lack of funds.

He has just written a book which has been published by the Broadway Publishing company, of New York, and it is hoped that the proceeds will enable him to resume his battle against disease. The story is founded on a wreck which actually occurred on the Monongahela division a few years ago, the circumstances of which were most peculiar. The book is called "A Strange Railroad Wreck," and the author has woven a romance through it which is very entertaining. The book is neatly bound in red cloth, the title in gold and a cut of two locomotives colliding, on the cover page. The book contains a brief sketch of the life of the author. This alone is worth the price of a copy, not because it tells of suffering, but because it inspires the reader to live above the ordinary trials and persevere against adversity itself. The book sells for 65 cents a copy and can be procured from the author, George Collins, Elco, Pa.—Donora American.

FIRE AND FLOOD.

Nineteen Hundred and Four Has Suffered Severely—Manly Mayor McClellan.

Special Correspondence of THE GAZETTE.

NEW YORK, April 5.—Young 1904 is marked by calamities of fire and flood almost unheard of before, the character of which losses greatly varies. In speculation, where the price of stocks go up and down, the speculator who has money enough to stand the wreck puts the stocks in his safe and lets them lay there till he sees an opportunity of profit, when he puts them on the market and realizes his long waited for gain; not a penny has been lost; money has changed hands. Smith has what Brown once had and Brown is minus the difference; but in the losses by fire and flood which we have experienced in the last three months, where towns and cities have been almost wiped out of existence, there is a real loss. Towns destroyed by flood and property consumed by fire may be rebuilt by capital but what was destroyed can not be recalled. Let us look upon these calamities. The fire which startled the world a little over a year ago was not a human creation. The beautiful island of Martinique contained a crater which had been silent for ages. The dwellers in that beautiful island never thought of danger till one morning a sudden burst of ashes darkened the sky and in a few hours those hapless people were in the midst of a tempest of flame; shooting up thousands of feet was a pillar of fire and burning lava came rolling down in floods, carrying everything within reach to utter destruction. It is an old adage, "Misfortunes never come singly." The crater of Mauna Loa in the Sandwich islands sounded a note of warning that its power was not yet destroyed and with that explosion come a tidal wave that swept from the sea of Japan across the Pacific and delivered its last vengeful blow on the American shores. Now we pass a long interval, when, in a pleasant play-house in Chicago, on one of the brightest holidays of the year, a cry of fire was heard; of course there was an immediate rush for the doors, but these avenues of escape for just such an emergency were closed up and hundreds of lives were sacrificed in consequence. This was not a judgment of heaven, but was due to the recklessness of men, and was a crime before high heaven—the authors of which should have been punished in such a manner as to make it a warning to posterity. A few months more elapse and, in Baltimore, one of the most beautiful cities in the United States, occurred another fearful calamity of fire; the advance in modern communication by telegraph and telephone made Baltimore's cry for aid heard hundreds of miles, and nobly beyond all praise was the response to that terrified cry. The fire was subdued, but acres of smoldering ashes told its story. On Saturday last came fire in Greater New York. It was in the district where our banks are close together, the mercantile houses and exchanges nearby; close to where the fire took place rises a magnificent building, the foundation of which, up to the sidewalk, cost $150,000; near at hand is Trinity church and almost within pistol shot is the office of Russell Sage, well known in financial circles. Some time elapsed between the first alarm of fire and the arrival of the engines. We have a fire department of which any city in the world might be proud. The financial loss was not so great as it was at first supposed to be, but it was deemed expedient by the fire chief in charge to gather a large force to prevent the fire from extending; and his judgment proved to be sound. This extra call is never used in the fire department except in great and unusual calamities; that summons brought 500 men skilled in fighting fires; the conflagration was checked and the judgment of the chief vindicated by the result. Forty nine engines, trucks and hose carts lined Broadway; it was a display of power that in all probability will not be seen again by the present generation.

Just now the city is exercised as to the propriety of keeping down the lid. This word may not be understood outside of New York; it is a figure of speech which is supposed to describe the closing of the public house on the Sabbath Day. Ex-Mayor Low, whose seat George B. McClellan now occupies, was known as a temperate man. I am not sure, if the American Eagle were toasted but that he might touch his temperance lips to a glass of champagne, or that at a social fete of the Germans he might not empty a stein of lager. Seth Low is a temperance man—not too good, but just good enough—and, with the aid of Chief Green, he tried to keep all the places where a drink of whisky or beer could be got shut up on the Sabbath Day as tight as a drum. To say that their orders were strictly followed everywhere would not be the exact truth. It was supposed by many that if the Democracy triumphed in the election there would not be the strict observance of this law which Mayor Low and his chief of police demanded, but, at a dinner given by the Lotus club, at which Mayor McClellan was present, a toast was given and the mayor was called upon for a speech. Now, if there is a club in New York that is liberal and generous, that club is the Lotus; it has a large representation of the press belonging to it; many eminent financiers are glad to share its hospitality; men of brains and character are its supporters; each of these was curious when our mayor rose to his feet. There was a tempting display on the table, set with five or six glasses before every plate, and it was expected there would be an announcement that hereafter there would be a more liberal interpretation of the Sabbath law. It was a magnificent display of moral courage for our chief executive when he announced that he would shut down tighter than ever if his commissioner and the entire force of 8,000 men could do it. It was like a thunder-clap to many and some departed that night saying "I won't go home till morning."

The Roman Catholic churches had especially fine music for Palm Sunday; everybody seems glad that Lent is over and the announcement of marriages to come fills dozens of columns in the newspapers. The great combination stores are a blaze of beauty and crowded with buyers from morning till night. Where does the money come from? I give it up. BROADBRIM.

The Advance of Wealth.

The advance in the standard of wealth in the last century is recognized by all as something formidable. In the writer's boyhood Thomas Cushing was the only man in Boston, or its vicinity, who was suspected of being a millionaire; and even in his case some regarded such wealth as incredible. He was an essentially modest, retiring man, and said to a lady of my acquaintance, who ventured to reproach him for having holes in his shoes, that he knew no real advantage of wealth, except to be able to wear one's old shoes without criticism. But what is a million dollars today? To the eyes of many it represents economy; almost poverty; at any rate a step toward the almshouse. John Jacob Astor was said to be worth twenty millions, and that was such a colossal fortune, people had again to alter their standard of figures in arithmetic. After this, Commodore Vanderbilt's forty millions seemed but a step, and the next Vanderbilt's two hundred millions were not so wholly startling. Yet men looked with commiseration on the division of this last fortune by his published will. Sixty millions to each of two sons, and the rest of the family cut off with ten millions apiece! Men felt like taking up a contribution in the churches. Yet what seemed even these wonders compared with the personal wealth of the present day!—Thomas Wentworth Higginson in the April Atlantic.

HEALTH SUGGESTIONS

Christine T. Herrick Tells of the Evils of Over-Dosing.

REGULAR EXERCISE.

This Necessity Is Winning Attention More and More—Value of Correct Diet, Clothing and Habits.

(Copyright, 1904, by Christine Terhune Herrick.)

Everyone recognizes the power of diet in preserving health. Diet is much, but it is not all. It must be supplemented by a variety of other things. Among the most important of these is regularity of habits.

I once heard a man who had made much of himself physically, after starting with a very poor natural equipment, say that he attributed a great deal of his sound condition to the fixed periods at which he took food. "I find it better," he said, "to break my fast at dinner-time by a sandwich, when I cannot have a full meal, than to wait for an hour or two for my regular dinner. The stomach is a creature of habit and if you take liberties with it you are bound to make it uncomfortable sooner or later."

Another man of similar experience said later, in my hearing, that there was nothing worse for one than irregular exercise. "These women who start out and walk seven miles in one afternoon and then take no more vigorous exercise for a week, do themselves more harm than good," he declared. "The regularity more than the amount of the exercise is what works benefit."

Which leads to the necessity for exercise, and regular exercise at that. No one can afford to get along without it. The man or woman who wishes to preserve health must not miss it, while the man or woman who desires to restore health must be even more assiduous. The women who allow themselves to become run down must recuperate by other means than physic. Prominent among these stands rational exercise. It matters comparatively little what form it takes, so that it is rational and is pursued steadily. One more qualification it must possess. It should be taken, as much as possible, out of doors, or at least in the fresh air. This is one of the drawbacks to such games as ping-pong, excellent as they are in other respects. They are played indoors and usually in a closed room. Half as much time spent in the fresh air would be of twice as much value.

Because of the growing appreciation of fresh air exercise among physicians and students of hygiene everywhere I am glad to see the returning and increasing interest in the bicycle, as testified to by public opinion and the advertising columns of the daily press and of other publications. Physicians tell us that, rightfully used, a wheel is one of the best friends of the grown or ungrown person who wishes to take outdoor exercise, because it not only gives play to the muscles of the body but furnishes to the rider the sense of doing something and getting somewhere.

One of the discouraging features of exercise for exercise's sake is that it must seem futile and dull to the busy woman or man who does everything else with some object in view. When a woman sweeps she is exercising, but she is also accomplishing something. When she goes out, unless she has an object for her walk, she is generally bored by it. We read of English women walking three miles out on the turnpike and three miles in again in the laudable pursuit of exercise and we think with a superior thrill that an American woman would find some more interesting way of winning to the same end. But when we hear of stout New York women who post so many times around the reservoir in Central park in the endeavor to reduce their flesh, we wonder if, after all, we are so much ahead of the Britons in enterprise and invention.

When a woman is on a wheel it is a different thing. She is taking the air and exercising her muscles. But she is also getting somewhere,—to pay a call, to do an errand, to make the acquaintance of a bit of road which had been too remote to explore on foot. A New England doctor has put himself on record by declaring among the advantages of the bicycle that "it interests people and keeps them out of doors, two very important factors in a healthy, happy life."

Yet the woman makes a mistake if she takes a long run on her wheel one day and allows it to gather dust, unused, thereafter for a week or ten days. If she is to derive full advantage from her cycling, she must make it an everyday matter, weather permitting. Not the amount, but the regularity—let me repeat it again. By this I do not mean that the day's runs must always be of uniform length. They may be extended or contracted as seems advisable. But the unvarying habit of riding must be kept up and the body thus preserved in condition for work or play.

This necessity for regular exercise is winning attention more and more. The whole problem of proper bodily development has of late years received serious consideration, both by the medical fraternity and by the laity. The popularity of the various systems of physical training is a good indication and many of these schools seem to have accomplished good. They stand for much in their respective lines. It is rather unusual in that the ethical side is made of paramount importance.

Many women, young and old, would be materially benefited in general health, pose of body, clearness of complexion and keenness of mind by a course of moderate physical training under a guidance which gives proper consideration to individual needs. Physical culture teachers insist upon regularity as a fundamental part of the physical training they direct.

Similar regularity is essential so far as sleep is concerned for those who wish to keep their health. I do not mean by this that a fixed hour for retiring must be immutable in the case of adults—although it is a pity they cannot submit themselves to some such standard. While the exigencies of life forbid this, they permit a reasonable amount of rule and precept concerning slumber. There are few women who cannot maintain a tolerably strict regimen so far as habits of sleep are concerned. The mothers of little children must resign themselves to broken nights, but the majority of wives and mothers, and still more, the younger women, may have a fixed time for retiring and adhere to this with some degree of strictness. It is very well to allot "six hours of sleep to a man, seven to a woman and eight to a fool," as the old proverb runs, but the so-called fool's allowance is none too much for the greater part of mankind and womankind.

Besides this there are other health considerations to be borne in mind. Dress is among them. A well-known physician in an English medical journal has written recently against the evil of tight lacing and has laid to this much of woman's ill temper. The writer, who is a woman and evidently knows whereof she speaks, tells of the compressed organs, the restricted blood vessels, the hampered nerves, and declares it is no wonder that the average woman is irritable and impatient. It is said that there was never yet a woman who would confess to lacing tightly, but, in confidential conclave, they will sometimes own that perhaps the laces are once in a while drawn more snugly than is altogether comfortable—always by accident, of course! Those who confess to this will probably acknowledge to pains in the legs and back that hinder their activity of motion and make any brisk movement, or even standing, painful.

All this should be abandoned by the woman who would keep well. She may wear a corset, but it should not only be of the right cut and be put on properly, but it should be worn loose enough to allow her freedom and avoid all danger of discomfort.

Sometimes it seems as though a special Providence must watch over all women in general and young women in particular, that they are still alive on the face of the earth. The foolish things they do, the risks they run are enough to drive a mere man to despair. See the girls who go out insufficiently clad, who pride themselves on omitting heavy flannels from their winter wardrobe, who neglect overshoes, affect thin soles and do a multitude of other such idiotic things. These errors alone should be enough to decimate their ranks, even if they did not eat things that are bad for them, ruin their teeth and their stomachs with sweets and indulge in a host of other insane actions. After they have grown old enough to learn wisdom they may try to reform, but by that time they have usually laid the foundation for ill health or at least impaired their constitution to such an extent that they are never quite well, even if they do not enroll themselves among the invalids.

Perhaps the women of the rising generation will grasp the fact that they are not made of indestructible material and try to take care of themselves while they are still in fair condition. For those who have done themselves injury there is still hope if they will address themselves to the task of repairing damages and preventing further harm. This is not to be done by over-dosing, but, to repeat the injunctions already laid down, by correct food, dress and habits of sleep and by regular and well directed exercise in the open air.

Consumption

The only kind of consumption to fear is "neglected consumption."

People are learning that consumption is a curable disease. It is neglected consumption that is so often incurable.

At the faintest suspicion of consumption get a bottle of Scott's Emulsion and begin regular doses.

The use of Scott's Emulsion at once, has, in thousands of cases, turned the balance in favor of health.

Neglected consumption does not exist where Scott's Emulsion is.

Prompt use of Scott's Emulsion checks the disease while it can be checked.

Mr. W. H. Wright, of 506 Chestnut street, gold and silver plater at 530 State street, Erie, Pa., says: "While I was not bothered with kidney trouble in a severe form, I felt for some time that my kidneys were sluggish and inactive. When I first got up in the mornings I had a dull, tired aching across the loins, and felt unrefreshed after my night's rest. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and felt that they would remove the trouble, so I procured a box at Haviland & Hunter's drug store and used them. A few days' treatment sufficed to thoroughly restore the kidneys to a normal and healthy condition, and I have had no return of the trouble since."

AN EASTER SERMON.

Rev. Bigelow Discusses "Science and the Immortality of the Soul."

Special Correspondence of The Gazette.

CINCINNATI, April 4.—In his Easter sermon, at the Vine Street Congregational church yesterday morning, Rev. Herbert S. Bigelow discussed the question "What has Science to say about the hope of immortality?"

He said in part: Have we, as Paul so confidently affirmed, "a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens?" The confidence that we have, declares John Fiske, is "the one thing that makes this world inhabitable for beings like ourselves." Yet for many the progress of Science has destroyed this confidence and it is evident that the dreariness of life has increased with the waning of this hope. We may put on a bold front but we cannot conceal our heaviness of spirit. Infinitely lonely is the universe from which God is banished. Melancholy is the life which looks forward to nothing but death.

THE PROBLEM OF PROBLEMS.

Honest despair is nobler than dishonest hope. If Science has destroyed the foundations of Faith let us know it. But has the hope of immortality been discredited? Does Truth call upon us to suppress the religious emotions and resign our faith in God and the life eternal? This, as Professor Tyndall says, is "the problem of problems at the present hour."

Infallibility has been routed out of several redoubts. It used to hold the Vatican. Later it was thrown back on the Bible. The higher critics assaulted this defense and it took refuge in the authority of Jesus. Now it is Science that is infallible. At least there is a common impression that Science has rendered an adverse verdict and that Faith has no appeal.

MARRIAGE OF FAITH AND REASON.

This impression has been caused by the fact that many of the dogmas of the church have been utterly discredited by Science. Such valiant service has she done and so often has the ancient theology gone down before her that many have come to the hasty conclusion that there is nothing left of the old faith. But just as a nation may be strengthened by the loss of its colonies, so religion has been strengthened by the loss of her theological encumbrances. When we come out of this period of iconoclasm it will be seen that only the useless has been destroyed and the way cleared for the marriage of Faith and Reason for which the world has been waiting.

SCIENCE'S LIMITATIONS

What has Faith learned from Science? Just this—that in all matters which lie within the range of human experience, the increasing knowledge of Science is our only guide. But immortality does not lie within the range of human experience and, therefore, Science can neither affirm nor deny it. "But," says the materialist, "to believe in anything which lies without the range of human experience is an absurdity." On the contrary, scarcely a year passes which does not give us proof of realities of which we had never before dreamed. There is no faith so unwarranted as that of the materialist who assumes that the soul is not a fact because none has seen it under a microscope.

THE SOUL THE HARPER.

John Fiske, in his address, "The Life Everlasting," meets the materialist in his stronghold. He analyzes the doctrine which holds that consciousness, or the soul, is a result of molecular motion in the nerve centers. The materialist declares that the brain is like a harp. Consciousness is like the music. When the harp is broken the music dies. Mr. Fiske, with his scientific attainments, defends, as no dogmatic theologian could do, the contrary view "that the conscious soul is an emanation from the Divine Intelligence that shapes and sustains the world, and during its temporary imprisonment in material forms, the brain is its instrument of expression. Thus the soul is not the music but the harper."

Science has no knowledge with which to challenge the conviction of Martineau, who declared that "a divine revelation is required, not to prove immortality but to disprove it, if it be really not true."

We may have the comfort of knowing that the revelations of Science have greatly increased the presumption in favor of the belief that the soul survives the body. With more confidence than ever, we may say with the venerable Martineau:

"The scale on which we are made is conspicuously too vast for the short reckoning from mortal years. The profoundest feeling which possesses me at the end of life is, that I stand but little removed from its beginning, schooled only in the mere alphabet of its attainable lessons!"

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR
Cures Colds; Prevents Pneumonia

New Jersey has had an Iowa winter, and Jersey peaches and other tender fruits are badly used up.

When fine oranges sell for less than Baldwin apples it makes the low excursion rate to California look less attractive.

The government has decided to look up the beef trust and find out, if it can, how it is that a sixty dollar steer almost doubles in value before the consumer can get at it.

The granger who had raised a nice lot of turkeys and had one of them get out when he took them to market and fly through a seventy-five dollar plate glass store window went home in a state of mind on the turkey business.

The building of a condensed milk factory in any given locality, it matters not much where located, is the best of security that every farm which can be made tributary to it will within one year advance in value to at least $100 per acre.

The first fifty days of 1904 saw eggs bringing the highest prices they have brought for thirty years. The cold storage stock was exhausted and the markets were wholly dependent upon the whims of the hens during a period of continuous and extreme cold weather.

The cob pipe industry is largely localized in one or two counties in the state of Missouri, where has been developed a variety of corn with enormous cobs. These cobs are worth to the grower about $15 per acre, after the corn is removed, for making the Missouri meerschaum.

It is not a bad sign that weeds are found growing big and thrifty on a poorly cared for farm, for where such weeds will grow there will also grow other and better things when good tillage is given. One of the cleanest farms we ever saw was one where neither weeds nor anything else would grow.

The average woman will find that a dozen geranium plants of different kinds will give her more satisfaction for winter house plants than anything else. They will bloom profusely, give plenty of brightness and color, will stand grief and won't die if the frost gets a nip at them or if she forgets to water them, while they are almost insect proof.

The seemingly small difference between zero weather in winter and that of 20 below zero settles the fate of a large line of fruit. Peaches, the European plums, many of our best roses and choicest shrubs which will with little or no protection endure zero weather for ten days at a time will be utterly destroyed at the lower temperature. It is this condition of climate which marks the limits of the peach belt all through the country.

A young man who lives in a good grass country where there is neither creamery nor cheese factory wants to know how much a small creamery plant would cost and how many cows he would have to have to support it and make it pay. A building with modern equipment would cost from $2,500 to $3,000 and he should have not less than 600 cows in sight before he puts a dollar into the plant, in order to make it pay. Trying to run a creamery without cows has brought men to grief all over the country.

The unrestricted, economic and commercial liberty which has up to this time been the pride and glory of this country and its making as the first power in the world is slowly but surely developing a system of commercial trust tyranny which bodes nothing but evil and which some day the American people will get after rough shod. Men used to be slaves by the compulsion of actual ownership; they may be slaves none the less because of economic conditions which they have allowed to master them while they slept. Not for long will the American people continue to pay unjust and unrighteous tribute to any power on earth.

When you take a flier on any board of trade product, do it with money you can afford to lose just as well as not, and be sure to save enough to protect the calls for margins; then, after you have sweat over the speculation to your satisfaction and the time comes when you can get out whole, sugar off and quit the business. If the country greenhorn dabblers in options could see the wealth and luxury in which their tributes maintain a raft of speculators and produce gamblers—just like an army of bees gathering and carrying honey to a hive—they would think twice before deciding to help maintain the cost of a liveried footman and butler for the nice gentleman who promises to convert a fifty dollar investment in pork or what not into $200 in sixty days.

Poultry at the Big Fair.

Twelve additional varieties of poultry have been added to the premium list of the St. Louis world's fair poultry show, consisting of the following: Rose Comb Brown Leghorns in the Mediterranean class, Black Red Game bantams, Buff turkeys and the following nonstandard varieties: Gray Japanese bantams, Indian Game bantams, Jersey Blues, Klondikes, Partridge and Silver Pencilled Plymouth Rocks, Pea Comb Rhode Island Reds, White Crested, White Polish bearded bantams and White Javas. Several eliminations have been made in the pigeon classification because of duplication or other causes, and some classes not now complete will be enlarged.

Good Way to Do Business.

F. W. Jordan Sells Reliable Remedy at Half-Price, and Guarantees a Cure.

When one can buy gold dollars for fifty cents, it is a good time to purchase.

In offering a 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at 25 cents, F. W. Jordan is giving one of the greatest trade chances ever offered to the people of Bedford.

Even though offered at half price for introductory purposes, the specific is sold under a guarantee to cure or the money will be refunded.

If food does not digest well, if there is gas or pain in the stomach, if the tongue is coated and the breath bad, if there is constipation and straining, Dr. Howard's specific will cure you. If it does not, you have Druggist F. W. Jordan's personal guarantee to return your money.

This remarkable remedy comes in the form of tiny granules, and can be carried in the vest pocket or purse. It is very popular in New York City, and it is not unusual to see someone after a meal at one of the large hotels or restaurants, take a dose of this specific, knowing that it will prevent the uncomfortable feeling which frequently follows a hearty meal.

Dr. Howard's specific gives quick relief and makes permanent cures of constipation, dyspepsia and all liver troubles.

These are strong statements, but F. W. Jordan is giving his customers a chance to prove their truth at just half the regular price—sixty doses for 25 cents. If they are not found true, all you have to do is to ask for your money.

INCUBATOR DUCKS.

Why They Are Preferable to Those Hatched by Hens.

The incubator will not hatch as large a percentage of ducks' eggs as the hens will. However, the ones that do hatch have a better chance for their lives in the machine than when left to the tender mercies of the hen. Ducks make a chicken hen nervous right from the start. Before they get well on their feet she sets her foot on one or two and crushes the life out of them. Nothing disturbs the machine hatched ducks after they once get out of the shell. This is the critical time with some of them. This is one time in their lives when they are slow. They don't pop out of the shell in a hurry like the chicks, because the shell is tough and unyielding. Sprinkling the eggs with hot water helps the hatching process. If they fail to make any headway in getting out after the eggs have been pipped several hours, the shell should be gently loosened enough for them to get their heads out.

It is easy for the amateur to test duck eggs on the fifth or sixth day. The big germs show up plainly then. There are likely to be several infertile eggs unless the ducks are very healthy and active, and we like to dispose of them early, which makes the trays lighter to handle.

Four weeks seem a good while to wait and care for the machine and eggs, but one feels amply repaid when a number of big, soft, cute fellows make their appearance. There is no prettier sight than a machine full of ducks. They soon grow ugly, but there is money in them when they are rightly managed, because they grow quicker than chickens or turkeys and are hardier. Young ducks, like pigs, are neither profitable nor satisfactory if given the range of the garden or yard. Keep the ducklings in a roomy, grassy lot, surrounded with duck proof fence. It won't do to give them their freedom.

Ducks will not lay so many eggs as they should if frightened by dogs or other disturbing influences. They must be carefully shut in every night, for they will escape if there is a possibility. Then the eggs will be widely scattered. A flock of twenty-five or thirty ducks will more than pay for themselves in eggs during the spring months if carefully looked after. We know whereof we speak, having had experience in this branch of the poultry business.—Ohio Farmer.

Dressing Turkeys For Market.

When you sat down to your fine, large, savory turkey last Thanksgiving you perhaps took little thought of the processes it went through in reaching your table. It was enough for you to know that the turkey was there, that it was fine and that there was not a blemish on it, no bruises—plump and fat.

The picture in the mind of the average Thanksgiving diner is a barnyard, a chopping block, a dull ax and a fluttering of the proud bird after decapitation among lumber and fence rails. That was the manner of turkey slaughtering in former years, but is no longer practiced by those seeking the best results. They are now hung up by the feet to poles and slaughtered in such a way that the bodies do not touch anything until they reach the scalding vat. There is no more floundering about the yard or imperfect bleeding. A man with a keen knife passes along the row of suspended birds, and their heads seem to drop off into a basket at his feet. While yet warm and still suspended the plumage is plucked away and stored in boxes, to be sold as millinery adornments. For some markets the heads are not removed, but an awl is pressed into the roof of the mouth, which produces death and perfect bleeding. A turkey thus treated comes to the table in perfect condition.—Charles A. Hartley in American Poultry Advocate.

Goose Gossip.

Grass is the main goose diet.

Geese can be spoiled by too much grain.

Two years is the age of maturity for the goose.

A goose should average twenty goslings per year.

Bathing water and green food are necessary for strong fertility of eggs.

African and brown China ganders mate more readily than any other variety.

Geese have been known to hatch and raise their young when twenty-five years old.

Rankin says that every Toulouse or African gosling is worth a dollar when two days old.

The gander shows the same love for the young as does the mother and will take general care of them.

Toulouse geese if well fed should weigh from forty to fifty pounds per pair when three years of age.

It is said that the Embden geese make better mothers than the Toulouse and are not so inclined to become broody.

SIMPLICITY PRESS

OSTERBURG, PENNA.

IF THE barefooted Socrates argued upon character and immortality, we with both boots on argue upon the style and superiority of our printing. There are three kinds of printing—one kind fit only for the waste basket, another kind suitable to be observed, and still another kind compelling admiration and love. We make the lovable kind. Our printing will characterize you as a man of superior taste and enthuse strength and beauty into your business principles.

THE NEW YORK WORLD

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Read wherever the English language is spoken

The Thrice-a-Week World was a brilliant success in the beginning and has been steadily growing ever since. Time is the test of all things, and has set its seal of approval on the Thrice-a-Week World, which is widely circulated in every State and Territory of the Union, and wherever there are people who can read our mother tongue.

This paper for the coming winter and the year 1903, will make its news service, if possible, more extensive than ever. All events of importance, no matter where they happen, are reported accurately and promptly.

The subscriber, for only one dollar a year, gets three papers every week and more news and general reading than most great dailies can furnish at five or six times the price.

The Thrice-a-Week World is absolutely fair in its political news. Partisan bias is never allowed to affect its news columns, and Democrat and Republican alike can obtain in its pages truthful accounts of all the great political campaigns.

In addition to all the news, the Thrice-a-Week World furnishes the best serial fiction, elaborate market reports and other features of interest.

The Thrice-a-Week World's regular subscription price is only $1 per year and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequaled newspaper and THE GAZETTE together one year for $2.20.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.60.

Point Pick-Ups

POINT, April 6 —On March 31 Isaac Fleegle went to the John Ellis place, from which he had moved several weeks ago, for a load of hay that he had not moved. He was surprised to find the smoking ruins of the house that he had lived in for so many years The house was totally burned and there was no insurance on it Dead coals were lying on Mr. Fleegle's hay in the mow, where they were blown during the fire on Wednesday or Wednesday night Mr. Fleegle had several articles of furniture in the house, which were burned. It seems that no one saw or knew that there had been a fire It was certainly the work of an incendiary.

Rich Russet Oxfords in Blucher Cuts

"Yellow shoes," as dressy young people have named them, are quite popular for every-day wear—just the kind of walking-shoes you'll want badly this season.

They're made with all the points of comfort—soft uppers for springy step, military heel for sure tread, low cut for cool ankles, yellow leather for resisting dust.

It's economy to have two pairs of shoes—russet for business, black for dress. The stylish "De-Es-Co" is what young women like "for best"—men are sure of satisfaction in the "Regent."

Prices run from $2 to $3.50.

Choose now while choosing is best.
